

NEW MEXICO MILKMAID

Tara Vander Dussen

Sorting through all the cow manure to share the facts about dairy sustainability by sharing my experiences as an environmental scientist, mom, and dairy farmer.

ABOUT ME

I am an environmental scientist, mom, and a 5th generation dairy farmer. My husband and I farm in New Mexico with our two daughters. I am passionate about advocating for modern dairy farming. My background allows me to bring a unique perspective to the dairy industry. As an environmental scientist, I share about sustainability, water conservation, and manure management on dairies. And as a mom, I am able to connect with consumers because I want to provide a wholesome product for my family and for theirs. Outside of dairy, I share about life through motherhood, New Mexico living, and our home.
